KH3 gathered at the usual place in Kennerleigh and there was a good turnout despite the soggy conditions. We were joined by Scooby's son (Quackers?) and some neighbours.

The Usual formalities were spoken before we all set off, in the wrong direction, and reconvened heading back out onto the road where it was clear that the hares were trying to kill us all before we'd got started as several hashers didn't seem to know what side of the road to be on and were nearly mown down. We then found the obligatory check back near Binneford Water.

We were heading for new ground and some good shiggy that claimed Crooklock and Elvis who, as he fell, was greeted with a rendition of "Way On Down" or should that be "I Can't Stand Up For Falling Down" (Elvis Costello, you fools!). Said shig also claimed all the lady hashers apart from, yes you guessed it, Fall In. Clearly this was going to be an interesting hash, especially as the hares got lost twice and one even missing a check. We were offered a shorter route part way round, but this had been kicked out by persons unknown. Dents seemed to be at the front most of the time (short cutting bastard).

Post hash we headed to the on down at Black Dog whereupon I lost my two passengers and eventually found them in the bus shelter. "You should have joined us" remarked Bogrot, doing up the top on his olive oil bottle. "I feel like a new man every day" replied Mudskipper. Get me outta here!

After the refreshments, Amaized received Soft Bertie for stating "I can't be the one" at one of the fishhooks. Woody was seen prowling around with the 'naughty list' "I'm not trying to make anyone feel guilty, honest!" Yeah right!!!

Superbug was seen mincing about doing his best Noel Coward (Dahlings) promoting his latest venture. Bloody thespians!!

Cheers for a great hash. ON ON!!
