

THE YEOFORD YELLER

Strange Noises In The Woods Again
Elusive by B Slow:

Strange sounds were heard in the woods around the village last night, in the morning weird symbols were discovered. This can only be the work of weirdos from CREDITON. Locals are advised to be extra vigilant incase anything interesting ever happens again!

Local Language section

There was much crewnting bout cricks when the diddlecome hashers daggled though yonder woods in the dimmet.

KH3 Plan to Crash Yeofest.

Elusive by B Slow

Kirton hash are planning to catch the train from CREDITON (Civilisation) to Yeoford (The Sticks) to drink all the beer at our beer festival. But don't worry we've moved the village hall. That should fool them.

Prize for the most prolific fishhooker

Elusive by B Slow

During 2017 a running tally may be kept for the most fishhooks used on a trail. Then next Christmas there may even be a prize.

More Frequently reaches the number of the beast

M-F has finally arrived at a significant number 666 the number of the beast. Suggestions please?

This edition has mainly been BS.....

Woody Gets Enough Glasses
Elusive by B Slow:

After many many years of attending the legendary "Yeofest" Woody has finally got enough free glasses to invite friends around. The next "Yeofest" will be on Saturday the 18th of March 2017. Don't forget to add that to your diaries. There may even be enough beer for everyone this time.

Fourteen at Dinner

Elusive by B Slow

The festivities at the end of Monday's gathering almost turned into a plot from an Agatha Christie novel but luckily we had enough people to avoid the dreaded "13 at dinner scenario". Also nothing exciting ever happens in Yeoford, so you're pretty safe there. Imagine if you lived in place with Midsomer in the name?

Dough Ray Me

Stop press, elusive by B Slow

Superbug "the apparently musical" is out laying a a trail in flour and it's raining! We know a song about that don't we?