

Kirton Hash House Harriers
The Concise Trash 13th February 2017

The Hare: More Frequently

The Place: Chagford

The Pub: The Globe

Following the conversation in the pub which turned to which bedtime stories to read to any grandchildren you might have, I have decided to intersperse the gibberish that is this trash with some shortened versions of some famous stories. We will call these "Concise Classics".

The Start

We met up in the carpark at Chagford and listened to some words by More Frequently. She almost forgot about the Fish-hooks, that is until Amazed (I think) mentioned them. (New rule if anyone reminds the hare about Fish-hooks then they are automatically included in the aforementioned Fish-hook, remember you wanted them!). We then set off around Chagford....

Concise Classics

Watership Down

Hazel and Fiver Hopped out of the burrow.

Hazel said "what's that smell?"

Fiver Said "Myxomatosis" and died.

The end

We continued on to the foot of Meldon Hill, here Captain Haddock "Stacked it!" and face planted into a bog. "Blistering Barnacles" we heard him cry! After some faffing around looking for the trail we crossed the road and continued up Natterdon to a sweetie stop.

Concise Classics

The Wind In The Willows

Ratty, Moley and Badger were walking down the road, when they heard a noise!

"Poop Poop" they were all flattened!

The end

We carried on with our wobbly loop around Chagford until we reached the car park again. I was awarded the trash (Not sure if awarded is the right word?) for missing the last Fish-hook. I Probably would have done it, had I been anywhere near the trail at the time... Mudskipper got Soft Bertie for the same thing, again nowhere near the trail... At the pub we were offered fish and chips, pie or a mung bean curry with added mung beans for the vegetarians.. Some how we managed to order one too many fish and chips, the waiter took it away again, on suggesting we could eat it we were told someone already had! Long will we talk about "The one that got away"...

The end

P.S good trail More Frequently apart from the Fish-hooks...

Dents...