... whew Thanks ! .. thought I'd never escape !!

A select 18 or so of us arrived at the set-off point, where there was much speculation on the tree leaning dramatically over some of the cars at a 45 degree angle .. as well as RUN at your own risk, it felt very much a case of PARK at your own risk !

Elvis is still suffering the after-effects of Covid, and so came and walked rather than run, attired more like he was off for a round of golf .. on the odd occasion when he was in the lead I distinctly heard him cry FORE FORE !

Off down the track into the woods, with slight confusion over the dots from last time until we got our eye in. Scoubi responsibly warned us in advance that at some point we would come across a "quarry" , and to take great care traversing same, so I felt slightly disappointed when we came across what I would describe as a "scrape" at the summit of a field, though to be fair I did spot a beetle on it's back down there waving it's legs in the air .. if only it had listened at the start !

Soon after we arrived at the Sweetie Stop with a fine view in the direction of Woolfardisworthyofavisitbutonlyifyouwereallynothingbettertodo .. much discussion then ensued over the location of the 2 windmills we could see in the middle distance, which made me realise that I certainly won't be relying on most of you for directions in Mid Devon any time soon .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! .. we could be going round in circles for ever ! ..

... Ouch !! .. Thank You !

On from the Sweetie Stop down the hill in the direction of Woolandsoonandsoforth , then back along a pleasant water meadow, up into the woods and On Home.

On Down at the Black Dog, where I was disappointed to find that Doner Kebab was not on the menu as previously .. a sad loss I feel.

No sign of Soft Bertie .. off on halfterm Hols somewhere ?

Thanks to Scoubi and TweedleDee for a pleasant variation on the Stockleigh Woods theme !
